WOLFGUARD

"To be of service is why so many of us are dedicated to what we do." -- Doc

Described as the world's foremost humanitarian military unit, Wolfguard is known for its compassionate and careful approach. It's a sound choice for high-visibility operations that occur in close proximity with civilian populations where collateral damage is not an option. Most of its members are trained in field medicine and specialize in protection of some kind.

Specialist Gustave "Doc" Kateb leads this squad, having good relationships with his subordinates and an immaculate image with world governments and the press. While he and the rest of Wolfguard were brought together to apply their skills in sensitive missions for the good of all, their popularity cannot be overlooked. It will always be a factor for their deployment.
